MALDON STORY GOES
AUSTRALIA-WIDE

Hugh, Mara, and CFA Maldon Captain Sean McCubbin.
"The rescue was another example of extraordinary people doing extraordinary things," said Sean.

ONLY those who have been living under a rock (or down a mine shaft) recently might not be aware of the puppy that was rescued 25 metres down from an abandoned mineshaft in Maldon on Father's Day.

CFA Maldon and Walmer, Pumper 73, Technical Rescue 73, and SES crews prepared the site, including atmospheric monitoring, for the mine rescue team that was on its way to South Parkins Reef Road.

There were smiles and tears and hugs and puppy licks all round when the Oscar One mine rescue team brought puppy Mara to the surface - safe and sound.

Proof that good news can travel just as fast as bad news, the Maldon story was Australia-wide within hours. To meet continued media requests from here, there, and everywhere for a photograph, puppy owner Hugh, puppy Mara, and CFA Maldon Captain Sean reunited for Maldon photographer Rob Leeson earlier this week.

Sign sends shivers down spines

MALDON without the Beehive Mine Chimney would be like Paris without the Eiffel Tower. Completed in 1863 and standing 30 metres high, it is the only one of its age and size still standing in Victoria.

Two metres were removed from the top after damage from a lightning strike in 1923. There has also been some repair work at the base. The recent fencing and sign appeared three weeks ago and sent shivers down spines. Parks Victoria Area Chief Ranger Karen Doyle said, “Parks Victoria fenced off the Beehive Company Gold Mine chimney on August 22 following reports of fallen bricks from the 30-metre-high structure.”

Karen Doyle said an independent engineering assessment will need to take place before next steps can be determined. Parks Victoria will continue to monitor public safety in Maldon Historic Reserve until they receive engineering advice on the status of the chimney stack. The Reserve remains open to locals and visitors who would like to stroll through the quartz mine site, which includes the fenced Beehive Company Gold Mine shaft.

“We recognise the importance of this site to the local community and encourage locals and visitors to enjoy the 160-year-old attraction within Maldon Historic Reserve from a distance. We will continue to share updates with the local community,” she said.

Big bash at Newstead Men’s Shed Open Day

AS part of celebrating 30 years of Men’s Sheds in Australia, everyone was welcomed with open arms at the Newstead Men’s Shed Open Day held last Saturday. There was plenty of chin-wagging, BBQing, show ‘n’ telling, look-arounds, showings-off and bragging displays, and the local school choir was in fine voice and high spirits to kickstart the singalongs.

Secretary Graeme Lees said he was delighted by the turnout. “Newstead is a community of around two and a half thousand. We’ve got about 36 members and a great reputation in the community. The community supports us, and we support them.”

Some men don’t get to go out much, so they come down to the Newstead Men’s Shed to share a chat and a cuppa.

“During COVID, it was really difficult for some. Because they lost the ability to come here for a few years, we had to teach a lot of our guys to become digitally active, and we noticed the positive impact on their health at the time. It is a strong part of what Men’s Sheds are about - giving people all types of opportunities.

“Every shed is different depending on what their skill sets are and what their members are prepared to do. But here, because it’s such a small community, we have people coming down with their broken furniture and bits and pieces all the time for refurbishment or repair. We go out of our way and help a lot of community groups - the kindergarten and the primary school. We’re doing a big job very shortly with 83 new plaques for the Avenue of Honour - providing labour and feeding the guys working on the day.”

A lot of people are now starting to see that Men’s Sheds are not like they were a decade or so ago - just guys in a workshop with chisels and hammers making toy cars. It’s a broader cross-section now with all sorts of skills. And they are attracting a lot more younger people.

When Graeme was asked how others can encourage someone they know to consider joining up, he said, “The best thing to do is don’t talk to us on the phone. Don’t put him on the phone. He’s better off coming down, talking to us face-to-face, and sharing a cup of tea with us. We’ll walk around, we’ll talk to him about what they want, what we can do, and that’s the best way.

“It’s about treating everybody with respect, particularly the older male generation. They’re sometimes written off and they feel it at times, and their ability to be part of this community gives them that renewed confidence and renewed social skills.”

Newstead envisions its future

CYCLING/WALKING trails linking the Newstead Arts Hub to the centre of town and an urban forest strategy have topped a list of projects that the Newstead community would like to see developed.

These projects were among many to emerge at a visioning session at the Newstead Community Centre on Sunday, 10 September.

All up, 76 people attended to discuss the town’s short and long-term needs. They were invited to discuss Newstead’s future, the town’s needs and what projects they might contribute to.

The session was organised by the community group Newstead 21 Inc., formerly known as Newstead 2021.

N21Inc President Gen Barlow said the Newstead community turned out in its usual supportive form, and many new connections were made.

“This wasn’t about us at N21 saying we’d do these projects. It was about unearthing projects and a future that residents are willing to work on themselves, which is how things get done around here.

“The loudest and clearest call was for more volunteers and members, which came from every club and organisation represented.

“People are willing to help, and many clubs and organisations want to involve those people, so there’s obviously a project there to look at ways they can be linked.

“Creating more shade along our streets and accessible walking and cycling trails is a strong priority. That’s about enhancing opportunities for people of all ages and abilities to be physically active in and around the town.”

A recent feasibility study into the Castlemaine-Maryborough Rail Trail, which will go through Newstead, also attracted a lot of interest, Gen said.

Locals strongly supported two cycling/walking paths linking the Newstead Arts Hub, formerly the Newstead Railway Station (where the CMRT will go through), to the centre of town and planting them out with trees and under-storey.

CMRT advocate Steve Foskey said that linking the planned rail trail to the town centre along attractive cycling/walking paths would help bring cyclists and walkers into town to spend at the local cafe, general store, supermarket and pub.

Other big ticket items were an urban forest strategy to keep the town’s streets cool and shady, new toilets in Panmure Street, medium density housing for retirees and a call for ways to connect young families and provide more of what they need locally so they don’t have to leave town as much.

Newstead 21 Inc will consider next steps and how it might use a $100,000 Victorian Government grant to maximise impact in the community, in the light of this visioning, when it next meets on Oct 2. Locals keen to be involved are welcome to attend. Email Newstead-2021Inc@gmail.com for meeting details.

Lisa Speed discussing the opening

Arts About

by Nancy Whittaker
September, 2023

ADH...ME!?

THERE is yet another little gallery called Cut it Out, which opened last Friday in Maldon, in the Post Office Residence in High Street. Artist and Curator Lisa Speed is complementing her This Little Piggy cooking skills with artwork in an exhibition titled ADH...ME!?, featuring the work of Jacki Irwin. Lisa is an avid art lover, maker and collector, and sometimes exchanger. Jacki is to quote Lisa, 'a Tradie, who works as a gardener with the NDIS'.

Jacki loves to create with junk and is a big fan of the reduce, reuse, recycle movement. She says that 'nothing with a FREE sign on the side of the road is safe', and she will often be seen with the most random stuff in the back of her Ute. Jacki is a 'Punk rock fitter turned gardener'.

Jacki said that this exhibition is titled ADH...ME!? for the reason that while not officially diagnosed, there is SO much information at hand in these social media days that what she has researched just makes sense. She said, "There are so many 'Ah Ha' moments", when looking back at her life and the trouble she used to get into.

After completing an apprenticeship with the Navy, Jacki has travelled the world as a Marine Technician in the Royal Australian Navy. That was then. Now she is studying Horticulture while raising her two children, running a small gardening business for the elderly and making art. She is an avid environmentalist with a well-developed sense of humour who likes to repurpose random things, as in Give Way.

At the opening last Friday, a keen group of arts aficionados gathered to see her work, which is very colourful and at times quite funny, reflecting her quirky sense of humour.

Jacki's recycled mixed media works sold like hot cakes at the opening, with red dots abounding almost from the moment of opening.

ADH...ME!? will take you on a short journey through the chaos and colour that is Jacki's mind. Drop in next time you are going past the Post Office.

The Cut it Out Gallery is open on Monday - Friday from 2.30 - 6.30pm, and 12 noon to 4pm on weekends. Jacki's exhibition is open from 8 - 28 September. It will be followed by an exhibition of Lisa Speed's own artwork.

She says, "Art is life. Life is AN art. Everyday things can be seen in various ways and interpreted in so many versions.

For further information, contact Lisa on 0474 037 556.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

#5 of a series: Donna Wood, The Kangaroo Hotel, 'The Roo'.

maldon inc
THE BUSINESS ASSOCIATION OF MALDON

So, how's business?

"We took over The Kangaroo Hotel on March the sixth 2020, and we got closed down on March the 28th. So, we had about two and a half weeks of business. And it's been 'fluid' every day since. Every week things change, but that's business since COVID. You plan something, but it doesn't go to plan. So, then I just refocus and just do the best that I can with what's been thrown at me.

My dream was to have this amazing music venue, really good beer, good wine, good food, and very welcoming. We still have the good beer, good wine and welcoming, but it's not as busy as I would like it to be.

I've just been working with the ups and downs, but I'm just keeping passionate. I do love the community. And I love this pub. 'She's' so beautiful and old and wonderful. I just feel the Roo is a 'she'. And I think the first publican to run it was a female, so I just get that vibe when I say 'she'. It might sound crazy to some, but it means a lot to me."

Time for you to turn over a letter. First one...

The letters M, A, L, D, O, N were face down in front of Donna. One by one, the letters were revealed and the conversation captured.

O. Opinion.

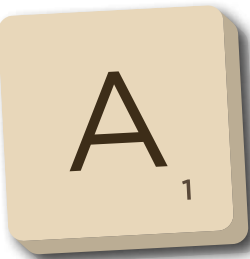

"Opinion... my opinion's changed since I bought the pub. And the opinion of others? As long as it's constructive, I'm always open. My ears are open to the opinions of my staff, my friends, family, and to the locals, of course. When they've asked me to try something, I've done it. Whether it's worked or not, that depends. I always like opinions because they change things." Next letter...

A. Anxious.

"I think anxious. I think feeling anxious can be a good thing and bad thing. Having a pub, I think you're always anxious about who's going to come through the door, how many people are going to come in, are you going to cover your costs? Change can make you anxious but also excited.

Maldon is an amazing little town. I want to live here. And that sense of home feels amazing. It's so friendly and inviting. It's beautiful.

I originally came from Melbourne, born up in Deer Park, then went over to the UK for 13 years to run bars and clubs and restaurants. I came back here and then moved up to the country as soon as I could. I used to be a prison officer. And in that time, I did work at Tarrangower Prison, and that's when I first fell in love with Maldon."

N. New.

"I think new things can happen in Maldon and new ventures need to happen in Maldon. There's a constant balance between the old and the new. But we can do it. The more money that comes into Maldon, the more Maldon can spend on things to keep Maldon, Maldon. There are a lot of people, 50-plus, coming in as couples buying older houses and doing them up. And to me, when somebody's doing that, especially when we're at that age, I'm 52, they must really love Maldon because they wouldn't do it otherwise."

Last one...

D. Determined.

"I think if I wasn't so determined, I'd be underwater by now... the determination of making it work and loving 'her' (the Roo) and loving what I do. I'm determined to try things and move things and work things around so that it's always, always a good venue to be in."

Where does that determination come from?

"It comes from my background. My Mum and my Dad came from poor families. I learnt that determination can accomplish many things. Whether everyone thinks the result is an accomplishment or not, or maybe only I do, I believe determination comes from within. To make things happen."

Sometimes things happen, sometimes things don't... it's all part of the journey?

"Absolutely. Absolutely. Yeah, sometimes business is just a really big slog, but I get back up again because life's amazing and we're given a gift of life, and how you use it is up to you. And I think that you can't be down for too long if you can help it because you don't want to bring that to the customers either. I try and stay on top of everything as well as possible. And if I need to debrief, I speak to the closest people around me."

M. Maldon.

"Maldon has amazing businesses with amazing business people in it. And we all have our own styles and our own quirks and our own characters. But I think that together, if we really, really banded together and really looked after one another, I think Maldon could be even more amazing. We've just had the Maldon In Winter Festival... then Goth...soon the Maldon Folk Festival, next year the Twilight Dinner Festival is on again, and all those sorts of things are bringing people in to say come and stay in Maldon. Then they get to experience all the different shops and then go home to Melbourne or Geelong or Ballarat... wherever they come from and spread the word... good and bad, so we should all work together to make sure they say good things."

"I love her - my pub, and I love my customers, and I love my staff. I know it's been particularly hard on a lot of businesses, including the cafes. When I feel a little bit sorry for myself, I talk about it with family and friends. And then it's just picking yourself back up and being positive again because at the end of the day, that load of little feathers that knock you down just makes you stronger. They really do."

Dementia Action Week

Give croquet a try at the Dementia Action Week morning tea at Maldon Croquet Club.

THIS year's Dementia Action Week is from Monday 18 to Sunday 24 September, with many activities happening in Maldon.

The theme is 'Act Now for a Dementia-Friendly Future'. Dementia-friendly communities have less fear, stigma and discrimination and better systems for people living with dementia to live well in their community for longer. Maldon is a community actively working towards becoming dementia friendly.

Tarrngower Dementia Alliance meets monthly to work towards the Maldon community being more dementia friendly. Dhelkaya Health, Mount Alexander Shire Council and Maldon Neighbourhood Centre are all supporting organisations.

Organised by the Tarrngower Dementia Alliance, a Dementia Action Week morning tea will be held at the Maldon Croquet Club on Tuesday 19 September. An opportunity to try croquet starts at 9.15am, followed by a delicious morning tea courtesy of a Mount Alexander Shire Council Community Grant. Guest speakers will include a person living with dementia, Lyn, who is a Tarrngower Dementia Alliance member and a strong advocate for dementia. She helps community groups such as the Croquet Club to understand how they can be more accessible for people living with dementia and why this is important. All are welcome to just turn up on the morning.

Two-thirds of people with dementia in Australia are thought to be living in the community. Changes to our communities to make them dementia friendly, support people with dementia to continue to live well and be involved in the things they enjoyed before a diagnosis.

Maldon Golden Movies will also be screening a dementia-relevant film during Dementia Action Week. Supernova features a lead character with Early Onset Dementia.

Tarrngower Dementia Alliance offers free Dementia Friend Training to community groups and is always looking for new members.

For more information about any Dementia Action Week events or to get involved in the Tarrngower Dementia Alliance, please call Maldon Neighbourhood Centre on 5475 2093.

Install solar power in spring and get ready for the summer harvest!

With power prices surging and the prime solar harvest season approaching, now's the opportune moment to switch to solar. Did you know two-thirds of the annual sunshine beams from October to March?

Matt from Central Spark in Castlemaine notes, "Every year, as if by clockwork, spring turns to summer, and suddenly, everyone's clamouring for a solar installation before Christmas. Avoid the rush and plan ahead."

Beneficial Offers: Presently, attractive rebates and government interest-free loans for solar installations and batteries are within reach, with the battery loan now going up to $8,800. The process to claim? Simpler than you think. Central Spark is here to guide you through.

Enhanced Savings: With the recent surge in electricity costs by approximately 40%, your solar savings have jumped equivalently. Think of it this way: a solar system that used to save $1,200 annually now puts over $1,600 back in your pocket. And if you're wondering, indeed, batteries can seamlessly integrate with your existing solar setup!

Why Choose Central Spark?: Boasting over a decade in offering top-tier renewable energy solutions, Central Spark's owner, Matthew Wilson, is not just a Clean Energy Council accredited installer but also a valuable member of Solar Victoria's Industry and Consumer Reference Group.

What's the investment like? "Today, with solar systems as powerful as 10kW, the typical expense ranges from $6,000 to $12,000," Paul reveals, "adding a battery would be an additional investment."

Get a head start on your solar journey. Connect with Matt, Nadyne, or Paul to secure your solar quotation before the summer surge.

From queries to installations, Central Spark's friendly team has your solar needs covered.

When energy costs go up, your solar savings go up too.

Give Central Spark a call and lock in a quotation before summer.

BOOMERANG RANCH 1/2 CAMP

AT the end of August, the grade 1 and 2 students went on an overnight camp to Boomerang Ranch in Daylesford. This is always a highlight of the year for students because it is their first school camp experience, they get to ride horses for two days, look for bugs and beetles around the dam, and build cubbies in the bush. Many years later, the children still think back on the camp and remember their horse's name. We interviewed a couple of campers to see what they thought of camp...

Sporting Success

Blake, Maci, Connie, Martha and Lelu enjoyed playing tennis matches against students from other schools.

On Friday 1 September, students in Grade 4, 5 and 6 went to an interschool cricket tournament at Wesley Hill with all schools in the Castlemaine area.

Maldon Primary School entered two cricket teams of eight cricketers. Each team played four games and had a day full of fun. At the end of the tournament, both teams placed second in their competitions. Here are some comments from our cricketers...

Wilbur, Grade 6: "I liked playing cricket against the other schools."

Oliver M, Grade 4: "I liked that everyone got a turn."

Dean, Grade 5: "I liked that everyone participated and were good sports."

On the same day, some students in Grade 4, 5 and 6 went to an interschool tennis tournament in Castlemaine to play against the other primary schools in the district. Maldon Primary School entered two teams with four students in each team. Students played up to eight matches for the day.

Auzzie, Grade 6: "I enjoyed the tournament because I improved my tennis ability as the day went on."

Bailey, Grade 6: "Everybody had a good time and enjoyed competing against all the schools."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Re Pam Jewson’s statement in last week’s TT that

“Research conducted earlier this year estimated that visitor spending for the weekend provided more than a $1 million boost to the Maldon economy.”

With about 1,000 participants in the Twilight Dinner, that’s $1,000 a head spent. Really? $1,000 a head? Who conducted the research?

And could the TT publish a balance sheet of the Dinner please?

Just asking.

Name and address supplied

Response to last week’s referendum question follows:

Q. Do other countries recognise Indigenous people in their constitution?

A. This question raises a serious concern about the current Voice referendum. One of our nation’s leading silks, Stuart Wood KC, has warned that the referendum is vulnerable to legal challenge in the High Court because it misleads voters. The legal argument centres on the question placing the emphasis on recognition rather than the Voice. Recognition takes various forms around the world, but most seem to focus on some form of co-governance or even separate governance. In Victoria, the Andrews government is dabbling with co-governance models and expects punters to be happy with paying taxes, rates and charges to a body comprising some unelected members.

The New Zealand experience is foreboding of the perils of treaties. What originally began as a reasonable idea of co-existence has now become a contentious process. Do your own research. Lastly, regarding state recognition of indigenous people, the Victorian parliament owns the state constitution and not the people. So the recognition in the state’s constitution does not have public endorsement.

Robert Frost wrote of a woman who had given her husband to the American Civil War, ‘One wasn’t long in learning that she thought Whatever else the Civil War was for, It wasn’t just to keep the states together, Nor just to free the slaves, though it did both.

She wouldn’t have believed those ends enough To have given outright for them all she gave Her giving somehow touched the principle That all men are created free and equal…….’

‘White was the only race she knew Black she had scarcely seen, and yellow never But how could they be made so very unlike By the same hand working in the same stuff? She had supposed the war decided that.

Maggie may. Maggie may not.

Hope for the second.)

IF there were a magpie version, it would go something like this: ‘Spring is here. The grass is gris. You never know where maggie is.’ It’s peak breeding season for our local maggies, right through to November.

Swooping to defend their nests, chicks, and surrounding territory they may be. Their first little swoop can appear playful, especially to younger children. But a flutter of fun can quickly turn into beak clapping, screeching and whooshing above your head to warn you to keep away from their eggs or newly hatched chicks.

The dawn and dusk calls of the magpie are one of the most loved. But at this time of the year, the call goes out to everyone to be aware and ready for swooping maggies. Swooping birds may be a frightening or even dangerous experience. They can swoop in your own backyard, in parks and gardens, along bike tracks, in school yards, or anywhere maggies are nesting.

Here are the obligatory Top Ten Tips, this time to protect yourself against our local ‘swoopers’.

- 1. Inform others of local swooping hotspots.
You can’t beat local knowledge. Share it.
- 2. Avoid the area.
The best way to protect yourself from a swooping bird is to avoid venturing into their territory.
- 3. Move quickly.
If you must pass through the area – move calmly and quickly – do not run.
- 4. Cover your head.
Wear a hat or carry a stick or umbrella above your head. Cyclists should keep their helmets on, dismount, and walk through the area.
- 5. Eyes at the back of your head.

Birds may be less likely to swoop if they think you are watching them. Draw a pair of ‘eyes’ and attach them to the back of hats and helmets. (Have young children draw the eyes - it’s a way to talk about swooping maggies to them.)

- 6. Do not harass wildlife.
Don’t interfere with or throw stones at birds. This gives them added reason to see humans as a threat and may increase swooping behaviour.
- 7. Do not destroy nests.
This may prompt birds to rebuild their nests, prolonging the swooping behaviour.
- 8. Don’t feed swooping birds.
This may encourage swooping behaviour.
- 9. Travel in a group.
If possible, try to travel in a group in areas where there are swooping birds.
- 10. Notify others. (Yes, it’s repeated because it’s important.)
Put up warning signs for others who may not be aware there are swooping birds in the area.

Your town needs you Part 3.

Maldon Central Heritage Precinct: Authentic, unique, important

MALDON has no heritage recognition now outside the Shire, save items with the State Heritage Commission. We have an application with the Australian Heritage Council (April 2023) asking for Commonwealth recognition similar to our heritage standing 50 years past. The immediate issue is that Maldon's claims of authenticity and uniqueness at an Australian level must be established now, or the town will be subsumed in a Victoria-wide Goldfields planning overlay, the World Heritage listing. Similar elements will be vigorously promoted by all 13 Victorian local government applicants. Our claims to goldfields heritage uniqueness would be compromised, yet we were first.

Part 1 of this series was the story of how we became 'notable' and began the Australian heritage movement. Part 2 explored the agricultural sector turbocharged by Major Thomas Mitchell, rapturising about the Moolort plains and the Loddon River as a springtime Australia Felix. This, the third part, focuses on the gold rush traders who catered to the needs of thousands of immigrants. Those traders built the Maldon Central Heritage Precinct, the focus for our claim to recognition by the Australian Heritage Council.

Traders followed the diggers

There's a great Goldfields picture by Edward Roper of the main Ararat rush of 1857. Replace the backdrop of Langhi Ghiran with Mount Franklin and the scene could be Maldon's Long Gully viewed from High Street in 1854, both goldfields a year into their respective rushes.

The picture shows the track winding up the hill past traders' tents, the denuded land pocked with shafts and mullock heaps, diggers sluicing, and an Aboriginal family watching all the activity. Roper included the heavy haulage of the transport industry - a bullock train - outside the foreground tents. These carriers of people and goods plied their routes through the ports and markets of Melbourne, Geelong and Warrnambool to the growing centres of Ballarat, Bendigo, and Castlemaine and out to the rudimentary settlements of the day, such as Ararat and Maldon. The system worked; a correspondent from Bendigo (February 1854) wrote that 'Tarrengower is well supplied with all kind of provision and merchandise. Prices are very reasonable for everything except water.' (1)

When Maldon's rush started in December 1853, a District Gold Commissioners camp was set up at the Tarrangower diggings in January 1854 (2), and on 4 February 1854 the town site of Maldon was gazetted (3). Typical of their goldfields' pattern, Maldon's first traders found an unoccupied site beside the track and set up shop by erecting a demountable shed or merely hanging a sheep carcass from a tree. Most traders moved on with the diggers, packing up their stuff and following the crowd. But some decided to take a punt on Maldon, and built timber and iron buildings (later brick) (2). In a very real sense, Maldon's Central Heritage Precinct owes its existence to their persistence.

Searching for a better life

To illustrate Maldon's development, we can follow the fictional adventures of a young British couple, he a miner, she a shop assistant, who landed in Geelong in autumn 1854. They were assisted migrants, given free passage to escape their coal town drudgery for the goldfields' potential of a better livelihood (5). They found lodgings and storage for the household goods they brought, and she soon found work in a Moorabool Street drapery store, freeing their meagre financial stake for his prospecting. They purchased tools, a tent and swag; she added cooking utensils, lamp, and provisions, and they booked his passage to Ballarat and their fortune. But after three years, the Ballarat field was too well developed for individual enterprise, and furthermore, in foment over miners' licences and favouritism (6). He had experienced enough such conflict as a miner and avoided the issue by travelling to the Tarrangower diggings by way of Castlemaine – just in time to see the place deserted from news of the Simsons' Ranges (Maryborough) rush (7). But the location was attractive with water and shelter at the Butts (Mt Tarrengower Rd), and prospects here were as good as anywhere else. Especially when he found 'rock' within a few hours of prospecting (turned out to be pyrites).

As a miner, he was undeterred by 'false gold' and soon partnered up with a quiet bloke working the reefs at today's Nuggetty's. Partnering was a common practice to maximise plot allocation/s, but relationships were often fraught when costs exceeded gold produced (8). Within a year, he had a good stake, and by 1855, fossicking was giving way to mechanised quartz reef mining. Maldon was becoming established, expanding south along Parkin's Reef, north at Eagle Hawk (a suburb) and east to Porcupine (the route north from Castlemaine to rushes at Moliagul, Kingower). The couple decided that they could settle in Maldon and raise their family, with his mining experience of value in the industry and her aim to open a shop.

The trials of the British governing their new Victorian colony.

After gold discoveries were officially declared in 1851, the rapid expansion of the supposedly agriculture-based colony and the volatility of the rushes stretched the Victorian government to breaking point. By December 1852, the colony's population had already doubled to 151,127 (including 50,514 non-indigenous women and 2,500 Aborigines). Annual arrivals from across the world increased by about 25 per cent (with some 20,000 women) up to the 1857 census, which recorded a total Victorian population of 410,766 (m 264,334, f 146,432) (9).

(Lieutenant) Governor Charles LaTrobe (duties Oct. 1839 – May 1854) oversaw the Victorian colony's foundation, followed by the short administration of Charles Hotham (Jun. 1854 Dec.1855) (10). LaTrobe's infrastructure expenditures resulted in high debt, which he tried to mitigate with a general miner's licence (30 shillings [£1.10s] per month Aug. 1851; raised to 60s. [£3] pm Dec 1851) for a small claim of 2.4m2 (8ft2) (11). This led to the peaceful protest of the Chewton Monster Meeting (December 1851) and later the Bendigo Red Ribbon Rebellion (August 1853). LaTrobe responded with the 1853 Goldfields act (IV Dec 1853, s. III), reducing the licence to £8pa (or £1 for 1 month, £2 – 2 months, £4 – 6 months) (12). Finally, the Eureka Stockade uprising (December 1854) resulted in Governor Hotham in April 1855 moving 50 per cent of Victoria's revenue from licences to a gold export tax of 2s.6d. per oz (13) when the London gold price was £4.4s. (14). Then came the June 1855 Gold Fields Amendment Act that reversed the colonial administration's attitude to diggers having the right to mine rather than licensed to mine, the latter being allowed to mine (15). The price of the miners' victory was £10pa (three months. £2.10s; six months. £5). This fee was extended to all persons carrying out business on the goldfields (June 1855 s.IV) (16). The cost to the Government was such that its expenditure was halved between 1854 and 1855 (17).

Of importance to 1854 Maldon, the December 1853 Act IV with the miner's licence at £8 pa had also raised the goldfields storekeeper's licence (s.IV) to £50 pa (or £15 for three months, £25 for six months) (12). Other early Maldon licence fees were also hefty: £100 each pa for auctioneers (Act XXVII Jan 1853) and publicans (Act XXIV Apr 1854) (18). But the June 1855 Gold Fields Amendment Act (15) gave the miners everything they wanted - at a price – and extended that licence rate to all businesses on the goldfields – except publicans and auctioneers. Squatters' fees were arguably £10 per 20 miles square until the Land Act 1861, which broke their hold (19).

Even with the fee roller coaster, the Maldon (Victorian) weekly household bill fell from £7 in 1854 to £2.7s in 1861 as imported goods poured into the country and prices crashed (20). But also in 1861, the price of gold began its steep decline from (London prices) £4.4s per oz in 1860 to £2 in 1864, working its way back up to £4.4s. in 1879 (14). This had a profound effect on Maldon as gold mining companies foundered without sufficient gold returns for mining equipment to work the tough quartz reefs.

Navigating bureaucracy for land titles and other sorties

Events moved fast after Maldon achieved town site status. With commendable alacrity, John Templeton (May 1854) surveyed an area to the north of Franklin/Francis Sts, with a view of moving the traders to a location further north, perhaps to avoid sorting out the traders' shambolic premises along the creek (Main St) (2). It was not to be; they stayed put on Main Street and its direct access to transport and creek water. Templeton tried the same ruse at Clunes in 1858, this time to avoid regular flooding of lower Fraser Street with similar (lack of) success. Then Thomas Adair (March 1856) surveyed Maldon's central precinct by recognising the inevitable configuration, and Hugh Swain (December 1856) completed the surveying job to the south (2). These surveys produced general law land titles, which rely on holders passing their asset on a single written deed, perfect for miner's right occupation, not so much for the centralised records of the Torrens system, perfect for a database,

Using their miner's right of April 1855, the couple purchased the freehold title to their leased land in High Street near the Kangaroo Hotel in 1856. They (re)built her shop and a residence behind, and (he) got to vote in the new Legislative Assembly and existing Legislative Council elections that year.

Armed with her £10 pa shopkeeper's licence, licence, the would-be retailer had shop experience but little local knowledge. For commercial intelligence, she turned to the Castlemaine branch of the Bank of Australasia (headquarters London), which was happy to help female entrepreneurs. Nevertheless, the Bank of New South Wales opened in 1858, procuring gold and offering commercial services

Living the lifestyle, then

The couple found themselves in a thriving commercial precinct belying the three years of its existence. High Street now extended to Telegraph Road (telegraph station 1859, post office 1870) (2) and the Springs, whilst Main Street serviced Eaglehawk and Porcupine (Bendigo Road). Maldon became a real town (municipality) in August 1858 (21). By 1861, Maldon had stabilised at 3,300 residents, which made it the 8th largest town in Victoria (22).

The couple juggled finances between their general store and his various mining positions over the lean years, and then a serendipitous purchase of shares in an Eaglehawk mine gave them considerable financial respite, including a trip back to see family in Wales. With their own growing family, it was time to sell the High Street premises and move to a new (Victorian) house on Templeton Street. A new store was built on an abandoned site purchased at auction in Main Street where her 1860s design flair could be indulged.

The gilded Maldon economy produced an exuberant array of commercial facades as shopkeepers jostled to be (similarly) different. The constant was a verandah over the footpath to protect passers-by from the heat or rain and to display the shop's daily offerings. Maldon Central boasted building facade styles identified variously as Italianate, Gothic Revival, Georgian, Classical Revival, plus later Arts and Crafts and Edwardian styles (23). For the verandahs, the Arup report (24) identified roofs as straight (pre-1900) and without guttering along the front, with simple detailing to the posts. Persistence and evolution by the dedicated Maldon business people gave us an irreplaceable heritage, which the current occupiers are (thankfully) maintaining.

Aesthetically, the Maldon Central Heritage Precinct is significant, intact, with sufficient differences 'in scale and form (single and double-storey wall heights, hipped and gabled roofs), materials (weatherboard, face brick, stone, corrugated iron and plaster or cement render) and detailing (eclecticism across ornamented parapets and verandah details) [combining] to present a distinctly layered and picturesque streetscape character' (2).

Modern Maldon.

The 350 metres of Maldon's largely 19th-century Central Heritage Precinct is the key criterion of heritage value. A century and a half after gold was found, these jostling shopfronts and their later grander brick compatriots form an authentic, intact, and continuous Australian 'historic gem' (25). Today's travellers pass High Street's Caledonian quartz kiln relics straight into an authentic 'Australiana' setting of shopfronts with their promenades of verandahs. Time has only improved the authenticity of the precinct without damage to its intrinsic character. Our couple's story adds to the social fabric of Maldon and forms part 4 of why Maldon is important to Australia.

New Holland Honeyeater in the canola.

Spring yellow

The local landscape has turned a vivid yellow in recent weeks, an explosion of wattles in the bush and flowering canola across the plains.

I was interested to see lots of New Holland Honeyeaters chasing insects in the canola, not something I can recall observing before. This species is very much an opportunist.

New bike book - 16 Maldon-to-Maldon bike rides

MALDON Cycling Group has just published a book with information about 16 local bike rides. They all start and finish in Maldon and are of varying distances and difficulty - from a short one around town to much longer rides. Peter Strang, one of the team who produced the book said, “There are some great rides around Maldon. Hopefully, this book will help some locals and visitors explore the area by bike”.

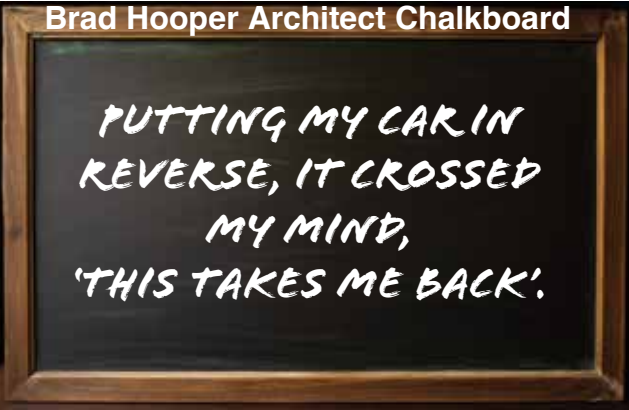

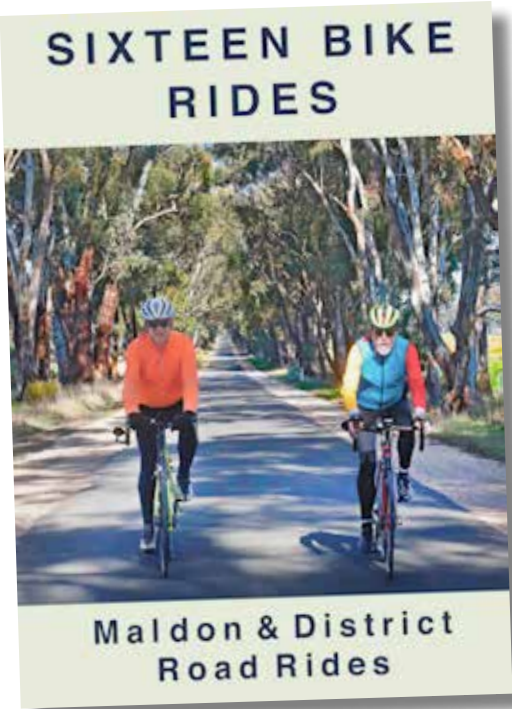

The book contains nine A4 maps showing 16 road rides. Each with detailed route descriptions, elevation profiles and local photographs. The rides cover a wide area. These include Bridgewater in the north, down to Daylesford, out to Maryborough, and across to Leanganook (Mount Alexander).

The rides are on surfaced roads, suitable for most types of bikes. All start and finish at Maldon, but you can join at other points on the route if you like. Many of the rides are via Castlemaine. Routes are on quiet roads where possible, but some sections with heavier traffic can’t be avoided entirely.

“There are many different types of bike riders. This book includes some challenging road rides. We plan to produce a book of gravel rides and one for more casual riders,” said Peter.

The book is sold at Maldon Newsagency, Mt Tarrengower General Store (formerly The Book Wolf), Maldon Bicycles, Maldon Getaways new hub store, and the Maldon & Castlemaine Visitor Information Centres. It is also at Stoneman’s Bookroom in Castlemaine and Giant Bike Shop (Hargraves Street, Castlemaine). It is also available in Maryborough and Bendigo. RRP is $15, but the price may vary at some outlets.

Maldon Cycling is a local group of bike riders who run the Maldon Classic, a display of classic steel bikes (to be held again in early 2024). They also have a team in the Murray to Moyne cycle relay and raise funds for Maldon Hospital. The maps (and some gravel ride maps) are on the Maldon Cycling website – www.maldoncycling.org.

THE FRONTIER CHILD Josephine Emery

The frontier child must make choices in the evening as the gramophone plays Viennese waltzes and the cows come wandering home.

The music is so pretty and the bovine beasts so warm. They smell of the earth and rich dung. She is caught there on strings of delight as the night grows out of the sweet-smelling lucerne hay and sounds of the chiffon dance.

‘This land is ours,’ her father says from the verandah slats, hitching up his denim work pants, gesturing across the creek to the slate hillside and the river red gums with their arms frozen, as if wanting to begin a story and waiting on their cue.

But he has the stage and her love for him flows up with the cooling night breeze to the yellow lights that her mother has just flicked on as she lays out the lace tablecloth.

The little generator thumps in its tin shed. Its beat contradicts the waltz and it smells of diesel and oil, not milk and lucerne hay. But it brings them light and music, both of which she feels so keenly.

There’s a bat flitting into the dark and an owl with its rhetorical questions—like her dad—asking, “Who will inherit this earth?” “Who could have done this but us?” “Who is Lord of their own creation?”

But she has crossed over the creek and seen the scarred tree, where the others sliced off the bark to make their vessels. She has retrieved from the ploughed ground a smooth green, serpentine axe-head, polished to a fine glaze, and held it and felt the other hands that held it.

In the morning the school bus (which is really a faded red truck with a dusty canvas canopy) will stop at the camp on the edge of the forest and they will leap aboard, full of a vibrant energy she both fears and envies. She wants to be friends but has seen that look in her mother’s eyes and knows there is one boundary she must not cross.

And she wonders what her mother fears and why her father struts on the verandah as if to deny the black night that comes like a cashmere shawl, like all her dreams of a satin life. Like he, too, is afraid of what might come wandering home.

Ask Your Vet

This column deals with broader pet-related issues, not specific health problems. If your pet is unwell, then a diagnosis can only be made by a visit to the vet.

Simply write to editor@tar-rangowertimes.com.au, and we will pass your question on to Andrea. You can also drop a note into the door of the Times office. We are happy to include your name plus the name of your pet in the paper, but we will withhold either one or both of those names if you don't wish to have them published.

Q. My dog is terrified of having his nails trimmed! How important is it to trim his nails, and do you have any tips on how to do this without stressing him out too much?

Keeping your dog's nails at the right length is important for ensuring your dog's toes and footpads contact the ground normally, allowing them to walk and run comfortably. If their nails are too long, they can struggle to grip the floor properly, which can make walking on wooden or slippery floors a bit tricky – especially for older dogs or dogs with arthritis. Long nails are also more prone to breaking or splitting and may even grow into the footpads, causing pain and possibly infection.

Most dogs will wear their claws down naturally if they regularly walk on bitumen or pavement. Dogs that don't have access to these surfaces, or aren't able to walk enough to wear their nails down, may need to have their nails trimmed from time to time. Dogs also have dewclaws on their front and sometimes hind legs. Since these are located higher up on the limb and don't make contact with the ground, they will often need to be trimmed.

You might have a sense that your dog's nails are too long if you start to notice them walking on their toes, limping, or slipping on smooth floors. You may also hear them clicking on the floor when they walk. To check whether your dog's nails are too long, gently lift up their paw and see whether the nail extends beyond the footpad. You can also check when your dog is standing with their foot on the ground. If the nail extends beyond the footpad or makes contact with the ground, then it may need to be trimmed. Another way to check is to have a look at the quick, which is the bundle of blood vessels and nerves that supply the nail. The pink quick is easily visible in white claws, but can be difficult or even impossible to see in black or dark-coloured claws. It's important not to cut the quick as this will result in pain and bleeding and is a common reason why dogs can become terrified at having their nails cut.

Some dogs can have severe anxiety about having their nails trimmed. In these situations, it's actually safer to have their nails trimmed at a vet clinic where they can be sedated for the procedure. You can also have their nails professionally trimmed by a groomer. However, with the right technique and approach, regular nail trimming can be achieved just as easily by their owners. Next week, we'll discuss some methods you can use to safely and easily trim your dog's nails at home.

Referendum Q&A

THIS is an initiative of the group Maldon for Yes. In the interests of open and honest discussion, readers are invited to submit their questions about the coming referendum, which we will answer as well as we can. The referendum question will be:

A Proposed Law: to alter the Constitution to recognise the First Peoples of Australia by establishing an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Voice. Do you approve this proposed alteration?

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION:

We're doing OK now – what would be so bad about voting No to the Voice?

To answer this, we are going to quote from a recent article by Allan Patience, an honorary fellow in political science in the University of Melbourne.

"The referendum is about nothing less than the civil rights of Indigenous Australians who have been denied those rights for more than 200 years of white settler colonialism. Seriously addressing Indigenous people's civil rights is the most significant issue ever to come before the Australian people ... a fair go for the very people who have been denied it for so long.

The outcome of the referendum will demonstrate whether or not we, as a nation, have a moral compass. If it fails, the consequence will be a bitterly divided country, destroying any chance for a consensus on how the nation can move forward. We'll end up as a country divided, angry, and full of hubris and self-importance – a country which our talented, intelligent and creative young people will not want to be part of.

Failure will also mean that the world will judge us harshly. Some crucial trading partners could well impose sanctions on us, just like the sanctions that crippled the economy of white South Africa during the apartheid era. This would be disastrous for the country's wheat, barley, wine, seafood, and iron ore exporters for example. And any pretence that we are a nation that respects and upholds human rights will be scoffed at, especially by those countries we've had the temerity to criticise for their poor human rights records."

AMY HALFPENNY'S CLAIM

On Tuesday 20 November 1900, Bert Halfpenny was killed in a mining accident at the Eaglehawk Consolidated mine near where the State Battery now stands. He had been working at the 1,068 feet level and, with his mate Thomas Shearer, had set four charges and lit the fuses. They gave the signal to be drawn up in a bucket, but after they had travelled about 50 feet, the bucket hit a timber support and Halfpenny was thrown out and fell to the bottom of the shaft. He was killed when the charges exploded.

At the inquest into Halfpenny's death, Shearer said the only light they had came from four candles that went out soon after the bucket was drawn up. He also admitted that neither he nor Halfpenny had used the straps provided when ascending in the bucket. After hearing further evidence from the company, the inquest's jury found that Halfpenny's death had been accidental. It also found that the management of Eaglehawk Consolidated was not at fault as they had taken every care and precaution. The jury also recommended that permanent lights should be installed at the bottom of all shafts.

Bert Halfpenny was 28 years old when he died. He was born in Maldon and had been a prominent local sportsman, captaining Maldon to their first football premiership in 1894. He married Amy Gabbedy, who was also born in Maldon, in 1896 and they had two children, Albert Jnr and Helena.

In August 1901 Amy Halfpenny brought a compensation claim against Eaglehawk Consolidated seeking £3,000 for the loss of her family's breadwinner. The company denied liability on the basis that Halfpenny's negligence had contributed to his own death. The evidence presented was similar to that given at the inquest and the Court found in favour of the company dismissing Amy's claim with costs.

Amy Halfpenny, who had declined a last minute offer of £200 to settle the case, shouted 'kill me, kill me' when the verdict was announced. Her later appeals were dismissed. The only compensation Amy eventually received was £50 and the costs of Bert's funeral paid by his union, the Amalgamated Miners' Association.

Library News

DO you like browsing antique shops? Do you want to know more about that interesting piece you picked up a few years ago? You might find the information you need in the library’s books about antiques that range from guns to dolls to furniture. If you’re interested in the weapons of colonial Australia, then In Defence Of Lives And Property by Edgar Penzig could be just the book for you. Or perhaps you’re wondering about that old bottle you found in an overgrown corner of your garden? Look no further than The Victorian Thirst by local author Ken Arnold. Other books by local authors include A Survey Of Australiana 1790–1940 by Bendigo antiques dealers Kevin Carney, Willi Carney and Paul McKenna. Kevin Carney also co-authored The Catalogue And History Of Cottage Chairs In Australia with another local author, Peter Cuffley. You’ll find all these books, and more, in their new home in the Hall.

Talking of new homes, the Maldon Collection has begun what we hope will be its final move to the other side of the Main Room where it can be better housed on shelves that accommodate its many tall books. But we are beginning to think ‘Maldon Collection’ is a misnomer. Yes, there are many books about our town and its people – books such as Maldon: Australia’s First Notable Town by Grant Blackman and John Larkin; Maldon: A New History 1853 –1928 by Brian Rhule; and Maldon And The Tarrangower Diggings by local man A.J. Williams. But there are also books about gold diggings and towns further afield, for example, The Accidental Town: Castlemaine 1851–1861 by Marjorie Theobald, and Dunolly: Story Of An Old Gold Digging by James Flett. Should the collection perhaps be called ‘Maldon and the Goldfields’? But then there are books about the region such as Along The Coliban by Brian Coman with its superb photos by Henry Oldmeadows. So would ‘Maldon and the Region’ be a more fitting name? Or ‘History and Geography: Maldon & Surrounds’? Or should the name acknowledge the Dja Dja Wurrung, the traditional owners of the land through which the Coliban flows, where the diggings took place and where these towns now stand?

Book Reviews

Wifedom by Anna Funder, 2023

This is the story of the marriage behind some of the most famous literary works of the 20th century and a probing consideration of what it means to be a wife and a writer in the modern world.

Eileen O’Shaughnessy married Orwell in 1936. O’Shaughnessy was a writer herself, and her literary brilliance not only shaped Orwell’s work, but her practical common sense saved his life. But why and how, Funder wondered, was she written out of their story? Using newly discovered letters from Eileen to her best friend, Funder re-creates the Orwells’ marriage through the Spanish Civil War and the Second World War in London. As she peeks behind the curtain of Orwell’s private life, she is led to question what it takes to be a writer—and what it is to be a wife.

The Visitors by Jane Harrison, 2023

On a sweltering day, 26 January 1788, on a bluff high above Sydney Cove, seven Aboriginal men stand looking out to sea. Moored off-shore is a huge nowee (boat), then there are two, then more. Who are these visitors? Where are they from? What do they want? Should they be turned away by force or welcomed to country?

In The Visitors, Muruwari playwright Jane Harrison (Stolen, Rainbow’s End) reimagines the arrival of the First Fleet from a First Nations’ perspective. These senior men, carrying the weight of cultural responsibility, must decide what action they’ll take toward these unwanted arrivals. A decision, under pressure, that will have unforeseeable repercussions and forever. Told with wit, charm, and a fierce intelligence, Harrison’s story upends the dominant point of view of this pivotal event. Annotated and with an introduction by Wesley Enoch.

IMT–In Maldon Today Radio Program

TODAY Katrine and Stevo meet Angela Down and Graham Pitts to learn all about Castlemaine Theatre Club’s next production, a stage adaptation of Dylan Thomas’ Under Milkwood.

Last Friday, Loz and Stevo were joined by Annette Gillham (pictured with Stevo), Secretary/Treasurer of Maldon Bowls Club, member of Maldon CERT, and volunteer of Maldon Museum & Archives. Annette encouraged locals to become members of Maldon Bowls Club, founded in 1889 when originally situated at what is now Maldon Croquet Club, relocating to its High Street home in 1952. The club offers various membership options, a monthly Goldfields Triples competition, and family-friendly Community Nights, starting on 20 October - running the third Friday of each month. Call Annette 0438 067 027 or DM Maldon Bowls Club Facebook page for more info.

Next week, EC and Nancy interview Jamie Heffernan about his plan to sell Maldon.

Homecoming by Kate Morton, 2023

Adelaide Hills, Christmas Eve, 1959: At the end of a scorching hot day, beside a creek on the grounds of a grand and mysterious mansion, a local delivery man makes a terrible discovery. A police investigation is called and the small town of Tambilla becomes embroiled in one of the most shocking and perplexing murder cases in the history of South Australia.

Sixty years later, Jess is a journalist in search of a story. Having lived and worked in London for almost 20 years, she now finds herself laid off from her full-time job and struggling to make ends meet. A phone call summons her back to Sydney, to her grandmother, Nora, who raised Jess has suffered a fall and is in hospital.

At loose ends, while staying at Nora’s home, Jess discovers a true crime book chronicling the police investigation into a long-buried tragedy: the Turner Family Tragedy of Christmas Eve, 1959. The book reveals a shocking connection between her own family and this once-infamous unresolved crime. For a journalist without a story, a cold case might be just the distraction she needs

The Lost Boys by Paul Byrnes, 2019

In the First World War of 1914–1918, thousands of boys across Australia and New Zealand lied about their age, forged a parent’s signature and left to fight on the other side of the world. Though some were as young as 13, they soon found they could die as well as any man. Like Peter Pan’s lost boys, they have remained forever young. These are their stories.

This extraordinary book captures the incredible and previously untold stories of forty Anzac boys who fought in the First World War, from Gallipoli to the Armistice. Featuring haunting images of the boys taken at training camps and behind the lines, these tales are both heartbreaking and rousing, full of daring, ingenuity, recklessness, random horror and capricious luck.

A unique perspective on the First World War, The Lost Boys is military history made deeply personal, a powerful homage to youthful bravery and a poignant reminder of the sacrifice of war.

MALDON BRIDGE CLUB

NECK AND NECK

THE term ‘Neck and Neck’ comes from horse racing, where the necks of two horses in competition appear to be side by side in running, dating back to the 1800s.

This week certainly was a ‘neck and neck’ battle of the boards as players worked feverishly to gain momentum by earning an extra trick or two. Hand after hand played, some with great enthusiasm and others which did nothing to lift our spirits to gain a good contract or two! Getting the edge was not easy and was usually gained by the opposition ‘letting us in’ by under or over-bidding!

Nevertheless, we battled on ‘to the line’ and put our trust in the final ‘photo finish reveals’ as we waited for the final results to be announced. Incidentally, the play was not unlike the finals footy over the week-end, where players were tenacious in their effort to get the edge prior to the final siren sounding.

As is usual, our scorers were quickly on to the ‘number crunching’, and Danny then announced the day’s results. In first place by the smallest of margins of one point were Ken and Sandy with 69 points.

Maldon Jo and Louise were tenacious in their efforts and came up short by one point, as revealed by the computerised ‘photo finish’, with 68 points for second place. Mary and Lyn worked hard for their third place with 61 points, followed by another ‘photo finish reveal’ with Danny and Judy gaining 60 points and fourth place. Well done everyone!

A welcomed break for afternoon tea certainly helped to clear our minds a little before we tackled the remaining boards. After consuming the warm, savoury scones and butter accompaniment, we wandered back to the tables to try and achieve a good result before the end of play. Thank you team Maldon Hotel once again for your continued hospitality. Until next week... when we will meet again to enjoy our afternoon together.

Whatever your age group or skills please feel free to join us each Thursday at the Maldon Hotel 1.15 pm to 4.30 pm to help us in our endeavours to USE IT OR LOSE IT

Sergio Uribe – Maldon-based Architectural Designer

ARCHITECTURAL Designer Sergio Uribe and his partner, Luz Restrepo, purchased their elevated block of land on High Street, Maldon, six years ago with the view to moving here permanently once their environmentally low-impact home (designed by Sergio, of course) was completed. Their vision became a reality last Christmas.

It is always interesting to learn what attracts people to our town. Sergio told the Times that after attending the Maldon Antique Fair, they realised this was somewhere they could live, and the rest is history. So, after leaving Latin America 14 years ago and living on the Mornington Peninsula, Maldon has become their home.

Sergio is now offering his expertise to Maldon and surrounds. After completing his Bachelor's Degree in Architecture in Colombia in 1988, he has continued studying in Colombia and Australia to ensure he is up-to-date in his field.

Sergio specialises in translating his client's dreams and vague ideas into tangible concepts and designs. He offers constant and clear communication throughout the process and leads his clients from the initial onsite visit to the final handover. He can effectively work with external consultants, contractors and government departments, making the process seamless.

So, if it's a renovation/extension or your dream home design you need assistance with, Sergio can help.

You can call Sergio on 0413 346 773 or email sergio@drawingsouth.com. If you want to check out some of his designs, visit www.drawingsouth.com.

You can also find Sergio's details in the Tarrangower Times Business & Services Directory.

Mount Alexander Shire Bolsters Flood Recovery Efforts

MOUNT Alexander Shire Council has taken a decisive step forward in bolstering flood recovery and future preparedness by appointing two new Community Recovery and Resilience Officers. The staff members, Neale Chandler and Natalie Pitts, have been entrusted with aiding flood-hit communities of Campbells Creek, Castlemaine, Newstead, and Baringhup in their recovery journey following the devastating floods in October 2022.

Both Chandler and Pitts are set to collaborate closely with local residents and community groups. Their focus will be on executing practical measures identified by the communities themselves. These initiatives will not only foster recovery from past floods but also equip communities with better preparedness and resilience for potential future calamities.

Neale Chandler stated, "Our first priority has been to meet with people and groups who've been impacted by the flood to hear their ideas about opportunities that could help to lead to lasting change in their communities." Such proactive engagements have already been fruitful. Chandler noted the development of a flood emergency response plan for one locality and pinpointed another community's requirement for continuous outreach support. The duo's work complements other ongoing projects aimed at flood recovery and preparedness, such as the creation of flood resilience-resources in collaboration with the community and various emergency agencies. This includes comprehensive evacuation plans, especially for the vulnerable, and in-depth flood information guides. Efforts are also underway to fortify ties between local communities and agencies involved in flood resilience, preparedness, and recovery.

For those who wish to discuss future emergency planning, or need assistance relating to the October 2022 floods, they can reach Neale and Natalie at 5471 1700 or via email at info@mountalexander.vic.gov.au.

The initiative falls under the Disaster Recovery Funding Arrangements and is the result of a collaborative funding effort by the Victorian and Australian Governments.

State Forests Open for Firewood Collection

VICTORIANS are now able to collect free firewood from state forests. The spring collection season began on Friday, 1 September, and it allows for personal collection in designated areas.

Any Groch, the Regional Manager Forest and Fire Planning, reminded the public to collect only from the designated firewood collection areas. She highlighted the importance of safety, stating that some areas might remain inaccessible immediately after winter due to wet conditions. Groch warned collectors of possible falling trees or limbs, urging them to remain cautious.

There are collection limits in place: a maximum of two cubic metres per individual each day and up to 16 cubic metres annually per household. Groch emphasised the significance of planning, as firewood from spring and autumn collections requires 8-12 months to dry sufficiently for use. To further support local communities, Central Victoria will restrict firewood collection to residents of specific councils.

While most follow these guidelines, officials will monitor the areas, ensuring regulations are upheld. Those found breaching these rules may face fines up to $769. The public is encouraged to report any suspicious activities on 136 186.

The collection season will conclude on 30 November. Information on collection areas and assistance for low-income residents purchasing firewood can be found on the official website.

SUDOKU 167

To solve: Each nine-number row, column and square must contain the numbers one through nine. Solution on page 17.

Hints: Naked Pairs/Triples: If two or three cells in a unit have the same pair or triple of candidate numbers, you can eliminate those numbers from other cells in the unit.

Steve Martin, Martin Short, Chevy Chase in disguise?

THE Hollywood stars of the 1986 Western-comedy movie Three Amigos have nothing on this gang. These three Amigas—Sue, Suzette, and Kim—went along to a themed birthday party last weekend. Along with around 100 other invited guests, they were all dressed up and seriously determined to cause some energetic fun and positive mischief.

SOCIABLE PÉTANQUE

In memory of springs past...

Cap'n P checking up on whose boule is 'holding'.

A determined Steve.

ON Sunday 10 September, spring was having a day off. In cool and rather cloudy conditions, a small group of piste artistes gathered on the Penny School pistes to battle it out for highly desirable chocolates.

We played quickly, spurred on by more space to spread out because there were only four teams. Players were somewhat distracted by the bird life in the trees above, wondering whether it was nest-building or feeding time.

Meanwhile, 'The boys were back' as my husband Geoff used to say when a wild bunch of sulphur-crested cockatoos swirled by overhead. This caused a certain lack of concentration at crucial moments of the game. The sandpits in certain spots also caused havoc when plans to reach the cochonette were foiled by heavy boules sinking instead of rolling.

At stumps, the overall winners for a second time were Geoff and Joan, with 2 wins and +9 points. They were followed in second place by Cap'n P, EC and Mme Bleue with 1 win and +1 point. In third place, Marieanne, Antoine and Marjorie scored 1 win and -4 points. Lucky last, and winners of the losers' chocolates AGAIN, were Carole and Steve with 0 wins and -6 points.

We play again in what we hope will be proper spring weather on Sunday 24 September, at 1.45pm for a 2pm start, on the Penny School Piste. 'New bugs' are always welcome. All you need is a set of boules and the desire to meet a new group of cheerful piste artistes with no strings attached.

Nominate Outstanding Residents for 2024 Australia Day Awards

MOUNT Alexander Shire Council is inviting residents to nominate deserving individuals for the 2024 Australia Day Awards. These awards, held as part of the Australia Day – Survival Day community event, recognise those who have significantly contributed their time and talents to the community.

Mayor Cr Rosie Annear expressed her admiration for past recipients and underscored the importance of these awards. "The awards let us acknowledge the dedicated members of our community," said Mayor Annear. "Presenting them during our event, amid festivities like the Survival Day concert and citizenship ceremony, makes it even more special."

Categories for nominations include:

- Citizen of the Year
- Senior Citizen of the Year (nominee must be over 65 by 26 January 2023)

- Young Citizen of the Year (nominee must be under 26 by 26 January 2023)
- Event of the Year (covering online events)

Nominees should be residents of Mount Alexander Shire, Australian citizens, and have shown long-standing community service. Nominators are required to detail the nominee's contributions and merits.

Last year's Citizen of the Year, George Milford, reflected on the recognition: "The awards allow locals to express gratitude for those working tirelessly for our community's betterment."

Nominations are open until 5pm, Friday 1 December, with the award ceremony scheduled for 26 January 2024. To nominate, visit the official website or obtain a form from the Castlemaine Civic Centre. For inquiries, contact the Council's Governance team at 5471 1700.

Stay strong and balanced

Embracing strength and balance at any age.

DHELKAYA Health, in partnership with Maldon Men's Shed, provides an opportunity for Maldon residents to better understand how to stay strong and balanced on their feet as they age.

Dhelkaya Health Exercise Physiologist Samantha Crook will talk about falls prevention and why this is so important for older people. She will also present some strength training exercises that people can do at home and will talk about the group Strength Training opportunities in Maldon.

The talk will be held at the Maldon Men's Shed and will be open to all Maldon community members (both male and female) who are interested in learning about age-appropriate exercise.

Event details

What: Talk about strength and balance

When: 11am to midday on Wednesday 11th October

Where: Maldon Men's Shed, Phoenix St., Maldon

Cost: Free

Bookings are not essential but highly recommended.

For more information and bookings, please call Rob Gibb from Maldon Men's Shed on 0407 810 633.

A WORD FROM YOUR LOCAL CHURCH

THE HOLY MASS

Twelve quotes that will change the way you attend Holy Mass.

1. When the Eucharist is being celebrated, the sanctuary is filled with countless angels who adore the divine victim immolated on the altar. St John Chrysostom
2. The angels surround and help the priest when he is celebrating Mass. St Augustine
3. The best time to ask and obtain favours from God is the time of the Elevation. St John Bosco
4. The celebration of Holy Mass is as valuable as the death of Jesus on the cross. St Thomas Aquinas
5. St Teresa was overwhelmed with God's Goodness and asked Our Lord, "How can I thank you?" Our Lord replied, "ATTEND ONE MASS."
6. "My Son so loves those who assist at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass that, if it were necessary, He would die for them as many times as they've heard Masses." Our Lady to Blessed Alan
7. When we receive Holy Communion, we experience something extraordinary – a joy, a fragrance, a well-being that thrills the whole body and causes it to exalt. St Jean Vianney
8. There is nothing so great as the Eucharist. If God had something more precious, He would have given it to us. St Jean Vianney
9. Be eager to go to Mass on weekdays also, even if it costs a sacrifice. Our Lord will reward you with His Blessings and make you succeed in your undertakings. St John Bosco
10. When you have been to Holy Communion, the balm of love envelops the soul as the flower envelops the bee. St Jean Vianney
11. It would be easier for the world to survive without the sun than to do without Holy Mass. St Pio of Pietrelcina
12. If we really understood the Mass, we would die of joy. St Jean Vianney
